

Hey Colton,

This is the second test message. In order to make this file, I had to clone the GitHub repository onto my VM. Then after that I had to run the Makefile again to create executables that were compiled and ready to run on the Linux VM.

There was an issue with compiling and creating the executables on the Mac OS X operating system where they would run on the Linux VM, so I tried putting all the files on the VM first and then compiling them and making new executables on the VM. I will try running the script on these new executables and see if we can get this thing working properly!

Best, Colton